This examination is worth 100 points. You have the remainder of the scheduled time to complete this. Do not open this test booklet until I tell you to do so.
Part I: Fill in the blanks

Place one (and only one) term from the Word Bank into each blank. Make sure the term makes sense in that position. Terms may be used more than once. This section will have 10 blanks and be worth 20%.

One of the definitions of _____________ that we used in this course was:

Terrorism is an anxiety-inspiring method of repeated (or credible threat of repeated) _____________ employed by _____________ for political reasons, whereby — in contrast to assassination — the direct targets of violence are not the main targets.

This definition is not without controversy; by this definition, states cannot be terrorists. Thus, nothing that Israel or _____________ does can be classified as _____________.

By this definition, terrorists target _____________ — individuals who are not actively involved in _____________. Because of this, those groups who solely target the military (such as the Real IRA), cannot be terrorists.

Part III: Short Answer

Answer the questions using complete sentences, proper grammar, and clear logic. I must be able to read your handwriting, so write legibly. This section will have five questions and be worth 30%.

1. According to Martha Crenshaw, what are preconditions? Give examples to help clarify what you mean.

2. How did the meaning of terrorism change between the time of the French Revolution and of Napoleon’s war in Spain?
3. According to Enders and Sandler, What is the difference between domestic and transnational terrorism? Why is this distinction important?

4. What were Enders and Sandler’s results?
Part IV: Essay

Answer the essay question in standard essay form. This includes an introduction, a conclusion, and a logical body all written using correct spelling and grammar. Explicitly emphasize the readings. The essay should be approximately two pages in length. This section will have one question and be worth 30%.

Compare and contrast communists with socialists with anarchists with radical democrats.
