

Terrorism: A Study in Scarlet

Terrorist Group Reports
Ole J. Forsberg, Ph.D.
Creighton University

On the week of February 4, we will be discussing some terrorist groups. Each student will be assigned on type of terrorist group and will be responsible for learning about two groups that fit that type. Be able to speak for approximately five minutes on each of the two groups.

Things you may wish to know are its purposes, its strength, its level of violence, its successes, its failures, and its history. There are many places you can locate information about terrorist groups. The Terrorism Knowledge Base makes a good source, as does the Federation of American Scientists and the US Department of State's Foreign Terrorist Organizations list.

The Listing

Student	Group Type	Date of Presentation
Brody S. Bockenstedt	Nationalist-Separatist	February 8
Ian J. Eppenbaugh	Millennial	February 4
Philip A. Hennessey	Anarchist	February 8
Cameron W. Hinkson	Anti-Terrorist	February 6
Brent A. Jasion	Nationalist-Separatist	February 8
Adam M. Kalin	Right-Wing	February 6
Isaac S. Kittle	Left-Wing	February 4
Conor J. Mannix	Anarchist	February 8
Andrew F. McChesney	Left-Wing	February 4
Erin M. Peterson	Religious	February 4
Kristin N. Phaneuf	Anti-Terrorist	February 6
Elizabeth T. Stothert	Religious	February 4
Nathan A. Wilson	Right-Wing	February 6